

Chapter 10

The Bottom Line on Where to Survive

Our Opinion You asked for it, and we are going to give it you.

This is the ULTIMATE guide to the BEST, SAFEST, and overall most AWESOME safe haven countries to expatriate to. Read and reread this often, to gain insights to why these countries are placed in this order!

NOTE: FOR GREATER DETAILS AND INSIGHTS TO THE TOP 7 SAFE HAVENS, CONSIDER SUBSCRIBING TO ESCAPE INSIDER. EVERY PRO AND CON IS LISTED FOR THESE 7 SAFE HAVENS, WHICH GIVES A COMPREHENSIVE PERSPECTIVE THAT IS NOT PRESENTED HERE.

For decades I have helped thousands of people expatriate through the information provided on this website. I continually learn new things, on a daily basis. This is a good thing. I spend hours a day doing research, and this research helps me understand all the variables in helping YOU choose a safe haven that really IS a safe haven.

The 100 survival categories that determine the numbers of each of the world's 200 countries is detailed and complete. HOWEVER, each survival category is NOT equal in importance to your survival. Therefore, I have chosen to include several other very IMPORTANT factors into determining the top 10 survival countries that are your best choices for a safe haven.

This includes things like immigration (is it 'easy' or really hard to immigrate to?) I.E. : Even if the country can provide safety from world war, starvation, natural disasters, and other dangerous factors, but it is nearly impossible to get into, or the government makes you jump through hoops and loops and then still denies you entrance – should not that country be knocked down a few notches?

How are the locals (do they welcome and help immigrants or 'hate' and despise immigrants, making it difficult to live in that kind of environment? I. E. : If you moved to a safe haven but the locals made your life miserable, (and they can if they really want to), should that country not be lower on the list than an identical country in the 100 survival categories, yet has very kind and helpful locals?

Is the crime so bad that it is already too dangerous to live in NOW, let alone during a major collapse or catastrophe? Again, as an example: Even though the country rates high in the 200 survival categories, yet living there now puts your life at risk due to violent crime (murder, rape, aggravated assault, and robbery), should that country still rank higher than a similar safe haven with very little violent crime?

I also put into the equation the ease of traveling to and from the US (and Europe for my European clients) to the expat country. For example: It can take up to 24 hours to get to New Zealand or Australia from parts of the US or Europe. It takes around 12 hours to get to Uruguay, Chile, or Argentina. But it only takes 3 and half hours to get to Costa Rica from Houston. The cost of a 1st class ticket to New Zealand costs around $15,000 to $18,000, around $4,000 to the three southern South American countries mentioned, but to Costa Rica it is only around $1,000 (for a 1st class ticket.) Many expats have told me that their relatives WOULD join them at their safe haven if it wasn't so far away from the USA. Should not this be taken into consideration? NOTE: Economy fares are similar in disparity.

The language issue is also addressed and added into the mix in The Bottom Line. My audience, listenership, and readership speaks mostly English. Places where people speak English, either as 1st language or 2nd language makes it much easier to immigrate to. Understand the points?

And I can go on and on with all the variables that I have included in The Bottom Line. What I have done with The Bottom Line is ADD the MAIN concerns that YOU and other expats have mentioned to me, as well as the IMPORTANT things that make living and moving to another country VIABLE.

Think about moving to a safe haven and you are the ONLY US expat living in the area. Now think about moving to a safe haven and there are communities of like-minded expats from all over the world that have similar feelings, goals, and lifestyles as you do. Which safe have would you want to live in?

As I have repeated many times, there are many survival pros and cons for every country, but sticking with the top 7 to 10 safe havens is what I advise you to do.

If you haven't already, we suggest reading our "Best Of" and "Worst Of" series. These series are incredibly informative. If your personal likes and dislikes are different from ours, this will give you an excellent inside scoop to where you will be the happiest, along with more security.

These two series also allow you to incorporate your personal feelings or knowledge about the future and come away with your personal insights and opinions on which country is the best to expatriate to. Here are a few examples of why you MUST peruse our "Best Of" and "Worst Of" series:

Do you seriously believe in global climate change? Do you think that hurricanes, earthquakes, rising sea levels, fires, drought, famine, and a warmer climate for most of the world is going to have devastating effects on survivability? Then use our "Natural Disaster" "Best Of" (where are there few natural disasters) and our "Worst Of" (where natural disasters will increase and kill millions) to give you the knowledge of the good and bad countries in this category.

Are you really rich or really poor? Our “Best Of” series allows you to know where your dollar will go the farthest, and what quality of living you can expect on what kind of budget.

Are you fearful of getting one mosquito bite and dying (or suffering greatly) of malaria or some other disease? Our series lists all the diseases that are life threatening and informs you of the countries that are free from these diseases and those in which you have a greater chance of getting one of the dozen or so diseases that could radically change your life, for the worse.

Don't believe there will ever be World War III? Not concerned about violence from civil conflicts? Or maybe you are the opposite. You are convinced World War III is just around the corner.

How about starving to death? No food. No safe drinking water? (2 billion people on the planet today already do not have access to safe drinking water!)

Anyone reading the voluminous information we have presented here knows that our whole purpose is to give you valuable information on specifically where to survive the next 5 to 15 years on this planet. The 100 categories in our rating system really do cover every subject. Statistics do not lie. However, statistics are cold hard facts, simply black and white, and rarely have emotions.

Our “gut feeling” coupled with our world travels, feedback from expats, and the statistical information we have gathered over the decades brings us to these conclusions:

Looking at all the ways people will die in the next 5 to 15 years gives us the best insight on how to stay alive. War, disease, famine, natural disasters and ruthless governments are going to be THE FIVE BIG KILLERS. We are convinced that the experts are correct; at least half the current world's population of 7.2 billion people will be dead in the next 5 to 15 years.

Therefore, we are convinced that Costa Rica, Argentina, Uruguay, Chile, Ecuador, Brazil, New Zealand, and maybe Peru do indeed provide the best opportunity for survival. STATISTICALLY.

Is any country “perfect”? Oh please! We have said time and time again that there are NO perfect countries. There are none now and there will not be any during the global collapse. What we ARE saying is that for survivability sake, these 7 countries afford the best opportunity to live, and not die, from the BIG FIVE KILLERS in the next 5 to 15 years.

NOTE: For years, Argentina was the #1 safe haven due to their high numbers in the 200 survival categories. But the fact of the matter is Argentina continues to deteriorate in several areas. They may improve in some and yet they are faltering in several. (Crime is way up- now almost equal to that of the US. Immigration is more difficult. Costs are dramatically higher, yet still relatively ‘cheap’ compared to the US. ETC.) This is leveling the “playing field”, if you will. MEANING that the top seven safe havens all have pros and cons. This is something that YOU have to decide. Put YOUR personal needs and concerns into the mix and you CAN come away with the best safe haven for YOU and YOUR family.

So, can everyone who wants to flee the US OR Europe to safety possibly all live in these safe havens? Today the answer is “almost yes”. But don’t plan on it. They will shut their doors long before that happens. The amount of immigration some of these countries are currently experiencing is overwhelming their immigration systems. Once the stampede out of the US and Europe begins to be too much for them, we expect the doors will shut, or at least become extremely difficult to get in. By then, the dominos of death will be falling with dire consequences all over the world. There will be no turning back.

Uruguay, Chile, Argentina, and Ecuador will “fill up” with expats. Brazil and Bolivia will become safe havens for untold millions. Many will survive the collapse. The countries of Australia and New Zealand, as difficult as they are to get into, will be a safe haven for many. Will the locals ‘rat out’ their immigrant neighbors? Time will tell.

The Central American countries, and especially Costa Rica, will receive a huge influx of expats, as they have been receiving for the past decades. Central America is certainly better than many other places (ie: all of Africa, Asia, most of Europe, and North America), but will not reach the high probability of survivability that southern South America and New Zealand/Australia has for surviving world war. But there are other ways people are going to die and suffer from other than from world war. This is why Costa Rica in particular has been a top 5 safe haven for decades. It affords safety and a high quality of living now and for the future due to many factors.

And the “elite” know this. Safe havens for the powerful (politically and economically) as well as the rich are popping up all over Central and South America. The people who really know what is going on and what is “coming down” in the near future are preparing to hunker down – mostly in Central and South America.

Some of Europe will stay “intact”. Those who survive will come under the tyrannical authority of the globalists. Rights and freedoms will be extremely limited. Europeans who survive may wish they were dead. Or they will be forced to join the globalists, like those Germans who joined the Nazi Party to try and survive within the system. However, many failed because they only became cannon fodder and pawns in the “game of war”.

The grim picture we paint here is our best assessment of the reality of what is truly happening in our world. Putting our heads into the sand will accomplish nothing positive.

So in summary, in our opinion, it is our advice to immediately prepare for leaving the United States or Europe and head for any of our top 7 safe havens.

However, you may want to take note that there are many politicians who have placed their trust in underground cities that have been built by their governments. These nations, especially Russia, the United States, and other nuclear powers, have put most of their “eggs in one basket” (underground cities) to “save” their top leaders during The Collapse. When the time comes for them to go underground, be assured you will not be invited to join them.)

#1 Uruguay is going to fare quite well. They will be prone to some disease due to their 2nd World status. Rising seas, possible tsunamis, will have an adverse effect on the coastal population. But Uruguay shall be spared, for the most part, from the ill-effects of war and is going to be more immune to dictatorial world powers than most nations. This is why they rate #1 in the world.

#2 Chile is the #2 country for a reason. It is, after all, perfectly situated in southern South America. It is between first and second world, and it does produce much food and basic goods for its population. The natural disasters are a concern, as well as a government that seemingly adopts globalist ideas rather easily. But there are some beautiful areas, certainly a lot of expats in and around Santiago, and some beautiful lush green ‘paradise-like’ areas in the southern part of the central valley. Just keep in mind the threat of earthquakes and volcanoes.

#3 Costa Rica has steadily maintained its position in the top 5 over all these years. In fact if the trend continues, it may surpass Chile next year for the 2nd place position. Costa Rica is on nearly all expat websites as one of the best expat countries in the world, and this is for a very good reason. And the feedback from expats who have moved to Costa Rica is the most positive of any of the top countries. This tells me that for those people who want to live in Paradise before The Collapse devastates the planet, Costa Rica is a top choice. It is the closest to the US for ease and cost of travel (and enticing your loved ones to join you.) It IS beautiful, clean, eco-friendly, and PEACEFUL. I have chosen it as my safe haven for various reasons that are explained at ESCAPE INSIDER.

#4 Argentina was the #1 country in the world for decades, but has been on a downward slide for several years. The current government is very socialistic, the economy is tanking, and crime is on the increase. Too many people immigrating to Argentina has forced them to put the brakes on the number of people coming in. It is lower end 1st world, in the safe southern hemisphere, has excellent food production, and will certainly be one of the best countries in the world to survive World War 3. Its distance from the US is a concern for some American-expats.

#5 Ecuador is likeable in so many ways. The cost of living cannot be beat anywhere in the world. IF you are poor with very little money AND/OR need to expatriate in a VERY short period of time, Ecuador just may well be your best bet. But because it is third world it shall suffer some famine, disease, and oppression from its government. The natural disasters may/ should be a concern. But living in the “right” areas you can avoid the worst of the natural disasters. It is on the equator, so is not as safe as the southern parts of South America.

As stated earlier, in the case of those that are on the lower end of the financial scale, we highly recommend Ecuador as possibly the best way to go. As long as you can live with fewer conveniences, less infrastructure, political instability, and the threat of volcanoes and earthquakes – Ecuador may just be the right choice for you. Getting to Ecuador is cheaper than Argentina, Chile, Uruguay, or New Zealand, as well as the cost of shipping containers (your personal items.)

#6 New Zealand has been a personal favorite of mine, and maybe I am too hopeful in a positive way that the New Zealand government will not be ruthless to its people when they join the New World Order and align themselves with the Luciferian globalists. I cannot rule out the statistics that point to New Zealand as a potential safe haven with all the previous caveats mentioned. I have spent quite a bit of time in New Zealand, and have loved every minute of it. It is one of the cleanest and most beautiful countries in the world, in my opinion. But for survivability and all things considered, it came in a tie for 5th Place in our Bottom Line, but we gave it 6th Place due to the distance from the US (and costs to get there) and its globalist leanings. Not bad when you consider there are 194 WORSE (LESS safe -more deadly) countries than New Zealand.

#7 Brazil has become incredibly expensive. Some expats tell us they love the area we have recommended, but simply cannot afford it. They speak Portuguese, not Spanish. Life is less sacred here, but for overall survivability, the two regions we recommend are safe from most of the deadly and dangerous things coming to planet earth.

The Bottom Line

So our assessment based on an old school style grading system is listed below.

We put into parenthesis the percentage of people we estimate will die in each country (or region) within the next 3 to 12 years from the BIG FIVE KILLERS. I have also placed the most negative comment I could make about these BEST Safe Havens in the world right behind their percentage projected death toll.

Rank Country Grade Percentage will die from the 5 Big killers in the next 3 -12 years

#1 Uruguay A (2%-8%) A top safe haven, but not a lot of choices where to live

#2 Chile	A	(4%-8%)	Natural disasters the main concern
#3 Costa Rica	A-	(5%-10%)	Paradise, but just north of the Equator
#4 Argentina	A-	(5%-10%)	Crime, difficulties with immigration are cons
#5 Ecuador	B+	(6%-12%)	3 rd World, and natural disasters a concern
#6 New Zealand	B+	(8%-15%)	English speaking – but globalist agenda the concern
#7 Brazil	B	(10%-20%)	High cost of living, Portuguese speaking the cons
#8 Peru	C+	(12%-25%)	Maybe worth looking at, but questionable
#8 Australia	C+	(12%-25%)	New World Order crowd runs the government
#9 Paraguay	C	(13%-29%)	A military dictatorship and 3 rd world
#10 Bolivia	C	(13%-30%)	Very 3 rd World

The Northern South American countries (20%-65%) (Venezuela, Colombia, Guyana, Suriname, French Guiana)

Central American countries (25%-75%)
(Honduras, Guatemala, El Salvador, Panama, Nicaragua, Belize)

Mexico (30%-85%)

The United States (60%-99% Upper end when involved in World War III)

Canada (25% - 65%)

Western European countries (15% - 45%)
(Portugal, Spain, France, Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg, Italy, Austria, Ireland, England, etc.)

Scandinavian countries of Europe (15%-35%) (Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Finland)

Eastern European countries (25%-90%)

(Hungary, Poland, Czech Republic, Balkans countries, etc.) African countries (45% - 95%)

Middle Eastern countries (25% - 80%)

India and surrounding countries (25% - 75%) Southeast Asian countries (25% - 80%)

China (20%-65%)

Russia (25%-90%) Upper end if involved in WWIII Japan/South Korea (20% - 45%)

The rest of Asia (25% - 90%) South Pacific (20% -75%)

THE BIG FIVE KILLERS:

War: Death via any form of war. Nuclear war. Conflicts. Skirmishes. Border disputes. Projection: at least one fourth of all deaths will be due to war.

Disease: Epidemics of any disease, whether tropical or caused due to war or malnutrition. Projection: almost one fourth of all deaths will be due to disease.

Famine: Starvation due to crop failure, sea life dying, and mismanagement of food and water resources. The financial collapse will add to the death toll from starvation.

Projection: at least one fourth of all deaths will be due to famine.

Natural Disasters: Volcanoes, earthquakes, tsunamis, hurricanes, cyclones, floods, fires, avalanches, rising seas, storms, killer heat waves, etc.

Projection: ten percent of all deaths will be due to natural disasters.

Ruthless Governments: Leaders like Hitler, Stalin, Pol Pot, Ida Amin, Mugabe, the current Sudanese government, and a host of other thugs who killed millions of their own people. Think concentration camps, work camps, debtor's prisons, relocation centers, etc.

The death toll in this BIG FIVE category (Ruthless Governments) includes civil wars, anarchy, riots, CRIME (murder), as well as other methods of dying due to either inept governments not able to keep law and order or their willingness to participate in the deaths of their own people through false-flag events.

Projection: more than fifteen percent of all deaths will be due to ruthless governments.

The bottom line:

Read and re-read the vital reports on this website. Think things through and develop a “game plan”.

Do what you think is best and do not let friends or family hinder what you know is right for you.

(You never know when your decision to “take the lead” might end up being what saves the lives of your loved ones!)

Start preparing NOW! Things can change for the worse at a moments notice. It is better to be years “too early” than one minute too late.

Start learning some Spanish now to make it easier on you later.
